The purpose of the Worker and Community Right to Know Act (1984-159) is to provide employees, community members and emergency response agencies (police, fire, ambulance, etc.) with information on the chemical substances they are exposed to in workplaces and in the environment. This information is available to all citizens living or working in the commonwealth who are not competitors of the employer from whom they are requesting information. Please Note: The State Department of Labor & Industry cannot investigate employee workplace complaints against most private sector employers because the Federal Occupational Safety and Health Administration (OSHA) Hazard Communication Standard covers most private sector workplaces. INSTRUCTIONS: Please type or print all information. If a question does not apply to your situation write "N/A." By law, your identity will be kept confidential for inquiries. For complaints, upon request your identity will not be revealed unless, in the course of attempting to prove the existence of a violation, the complaining party testifies or if a court orders disclosure. The law provides that a fee, not to exceed the cost of reproduction, will be applied for the requested materials.
